In re: Estate of Lou Anna Lawhorn

Dear [REDACTED]:

Thank you for your October 9, 1991 letter. After receiving your letter and a copy of the preliminary inventory sent to Eddie by Freddie, I prepared a comparison of the assets Freddie claims to have with other information my client received. I am enclosing a copy of the comparison with the attached support.

An examination of the information indicates Freddie Lawhorn is not being candid about the assets he has received as one of the co-executors of his mother's estate.

It certainly appears that Freddie Lawhorn has converted substantial assets of his mother's estate and is not accounting for them.

My client is not interested in becoming the executor of the estate. Instead, he wants the current executors to give a full and truthful accounting of the assets they have with full support to show the amount they got, a detailed explanation of the expenditures including appropriate cancelled checks. If this accounting is not forthcoming by the middle of December, we may be forced to report the matter to the proper authorities since it is a crime to steal from an estate.

Very truly yours,

[REDACTED]
